

Storytelling Schools

storytelling schools
where every child is a storyteller

Training skills course

Storytelling Schools is offering a three day training course for people wishing to develop their teacher training skills for teaching the Storytelling Schools method to other teachers. If you are a teacher experienced in using the Storytelling Schools approach and wanting to share your success with colleagues then this training is for you.

Wednesday 23 November 2016, 8 February 2017, 7 June 2017

Storytelling Schools Training Skills Course

9am to 3.30pm £500 + VAT

This three day course is suitable for those wishing to offer training within their own school and partnership. Attendance does not automatically lead to accreditation as a Storytelling Schools trainer; however it is ideal preparation for those wishing to become accredited trainers. As part of the course you will be invited to run demonstration workshops with the class. These will be planned in advance with the class tutor. Places are strictly limited to seven attendees.

The course will cover the following areas:

- Core approaches and methodologies for the Storytelling Schools trainer
- Standard workshop formats for the six elements: telling, deepening, shared writing, innovation, invention and non-fiction
- Opportunities to problem solve as a group and to review, reflect and improve upon work carried out between sessions

The course comes with a trainer's handbook of methods, a set of standard workshop formats and handouts for staff meetings and workshops.

Chris Smith is the tutor and the courses will be run at Wood Farm School, Titup Hall Drive, Headington, Oxford, OX3 8QQ.

Fee £500 + VAT including course handbook, a light lunch on each day plus tea and coffee.

Course requirements: teachers must have experience of working in Storytelling Schools and experience of running in-school staff training workshops.

For more information or to book a place please contact claire@storytellingschools.com or call 01865 748447. Discounts are available for schools booking more than one teacher onto the same course.

www.storytellingschools.com

www.facebook.com/storytellingsch

@storytellingsch